What do you get when you cross a snowman with a vampire? Frostbite! Thank you to all of the children and families who shared their snow-day pictures last Friday when schools were closed because of the weather. It showed to me how important family time, friendship and fun is, to us all. Mr Dax.

Art and Culture

Belvoirdale will be showing three illustrations by artist and author Alex Barrow from January 26th until March 16th. This is part of a new idea in partnership with Leicestershire creative learning services called Drawn into Books. The three illustrations are from his books; If I had a Polar Bear, If I had a Sloth and If I had a Dinosaur. A competition and a challenge will accompany the art display! Look out for further information. In the meantime, see if you can find out more about Alex Barrow.....

Ambition

This weeks assemblies have been all about being ambitious. Children were asked to think carefully about which Belvoirdale Character traits successful people needed to use when achieving their goal. Many children talked about hard work, determination and resilience is needed to achieve their goals. It was a great to hear the children's ambition of what the they wanted to be when they were older. Dream it, Learn it, Live it!

£170 and counting

Mr Dax has already raised £170 for Cancer Research UK by doing 100 press ups every day so far in January, thanks to the support of friends, colleagues and Belvoirdale parents. THANK YOU. If you would like to continue to donate and make Mr Dax suffer the stresses and strains of this challenge (who doesn't want to make a headteacher suffer), please log on to his fundraising page or make him do 10 press ups in the playground at the start and end of a hard day!
