SUPPORTING YOUR STUDENT IN YEAR 13

WHAT ARE STUDENTS STUDYING?

Students are currently studying Human Rights, with a particular focus on Article 5 – the right to liberty and security, alongside the relevant domestic law.

Alongside new Year 13 content, students also need to continue retrieving and applying their Year 12 knowledge. Regular review is particularly important in Law because students need to remember legal rules, cases and principles and then apply these accurately to examination questions.

FIVE THINGS STUDENTS SHOULD BE DOING NOW

Keep up with Human Rights in the news

Take an interest in current events, particularly stories involving human rights and civil liberties. This helps them understand how the law operates in real situations.

Practise exam questions regularly

Past-paper questions and other practice materials are available through the Law Teams page. Regular practice improves application, analysis and exam technique.

Keep notes and folders organised

Ensure their folders are complete, organised and up to date. Missing work should be identified and caught up promptly.

Complete weekly independent learning

Students are expected to complete their weekly Chase the Marks activities. These reinforce learning and develop the knowledges and skills needed for the exams.

Retrieve – don't just reread!

Regular retrieval of key legal rules, cases and concepts is essential. Students should test themselves frequently and create revision resources as they go.

HOW CAN PARENTS AND CARERS HELP?

You do not need to be a lawyer to support your student! Please encourage them to:

- ✓ Complete their weekly Chase the Marks independent learning.
- ✓ Use study periods and time outside lessons productively.
- ✓ Keep their Law folders organised, complete and up to date.
- ✓ Create revision resources throughout the year.
- ✓ Regularly test themselves on cases, legal rules and key terminology.
- ✓ Practise examination questions rather than relying solely on reading notes.
- ✓ Keep an eye on current affairs and discuss Human Rights stories they encounter in the news.

“What have you done for Law outside your lessons this week?”

can be a really useful starting point.

UPCOMING ASSESSMENT

Year 13 PPE / Mock Examinations – First week of November

The first Year 13 PPE Law examination will assess Paper 2: Tort Law.

Students should therefore already be revisiting their Tort Law knowledge alongside their current Human Rights studies.
