

Year 3 Learn It: Lesson 1

Other People's Projects

Background:

The world is full of information. There is so much to be learnt both online and offline, everywhere we go. There is an abundance of resources available to us now. If we're doing a project on any topic we can use the internet, the library and the people around us to provide us with facts and information. It's important that if we do use the work of others we take the time to give them credit. This may simply be in the form of a sentence starter, 'In the Encyclopedia I read that..' or more formal by referencing sources at the end of our work. It's important to remember that all work belongs to someone.

Key Concepts	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Work created by others belongs to them.2. There is so much to learn from the work of others.3. Credit should be given for any sources of information that we use.
Badge Descriptors	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• I know that work online and offline belongs to someone.• I can learn from the work of others.• I should give credit for any sources I use in my own work.

Glossary

online	When you are working connected to the internet, usually via a website, or on devices such as computers, tablets and mobile phones.
offline	When a computer or internet connected device is no longer connected to that service or network.